WASHINGTON:

Exceptional cool weather is followed by exceptional warm weather. The warmth long held back makes up in ardor what it lacked in promptitude. A study of meteorological conlitions is interesting if a trifle oppressive to the individual who can't face facts. Take the record for five months, from January to May, inclusive, and it is found, without specifying the figures month by month, that the total excess of heat in January, February and April was 345 degrees, while the total deficiency in March and May was 87 degrees, being an excess of 2.58 degrees on the 1st of June. The first three months had an excess of precipitation (rainfall) over the average of 3.02 inches, but the two following months were below the average, and on June 1 there were 1.28 inches. The dryness of the present month has about succeeded in re-establishing the normal conditions. In some portions of the country. limited areas northeast and northwest and chants. That this is true may be demonstrated in south and southwest, drought, more or less serious, in some districts severe, has occurred. The promise of cool weather for tomorrow is refreshing to the weary citizen in a dry land.

Signs are not wanting that the industrial movement in politics is undergoing or is about to undergo some marked changes. The other foreign goods he got tangled up in, before, were not for exhibition at the fair, but for country distribution, and the general was rather too hasty with his mouth. As his party is not on friendly terms with foreign goods of an inanimate character possibly the general may be tempted to express some opinions on the line of the McKinley bill. But with his past experiences he is likely to "keep his tongue within his teeth" pretty closely.

The Ohio republicans are evidently impressed with the belief that they are going to win this fall and reclaim the state from the democrats. Maj. McKinley appears to have the advantage in the greater part of the state provided the republican farmers are satisfied with the platform and with the personnel of the ticket. Personally the nominee for governor is unexceptionable to them. And they are not much lined to free trade or low tariff views. The condition of Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio is peculiar. Appointed to office he expressed certain opinions, brilliant in spread-eagle patriotism, but injudicious in a party view to be uttered by an immigrant commissioner. Called to account he denied the opinions, stultified himself, tried to shoulder the responsibility upon a newspaper reporter, set himself newspapers, who showed conclusively that he had not been misquoted, resigned his position and is now given an equally good position by the leaders, who were frightened into the Prices. $2.40 | $2.95 | $3.35 | $3.00 | $3.90 | $4.25 | been far better for Gen. Put yourself in their place. You can.

Remember the rosiest apples are not always the most toothsome-And the people who are on the "house-tops" shouting bargains the loudest oftentimes stray away from thefacts. We jut a value price on our stockone that serves you and us-both-faithfully-and it'll take more than the paring down of an exhorbitant cost to unseat us as the people's providers.

If you know what you want-come to usfor it. If you don't know-come to us for it. Come anyway. You may be sure of our
